

HISTORY
(specialty 07.00.03)

Sklyarova E.K. Problems of British social policy effectiveness in the first half of the XIX century

The author examines the problem of the efficiency of the social policy in the first part of the XIX century in Great Britain. The author focuses on different social problems of the efficiency of the social reforms in London and other cities of the United Kingdom. The author resumes that local commercial interests and corruption became the main brake of social modernization, investigations and reforms. The first part of the XIX century became the period of the objective transformation of the main vectors of social management in the cities of Great Britain. Social reform became the synthesis of different ideas, which were suggested by pragmatists for effective decision of social problems. The author resumes that principles of professionalism, centralization, payable of social administration, inspection and efficiency became the base of social reforms in the first part of the XIX century in Great Britain.

Key words: effectiveness of social policy, urbanization, social problems, corruption, social investigations, Great Britain.

Rostov state
medical university

May, 20, 2011
