

PEDAGOGY
(specialty 13.00.01)

Abraukhova V.V. Potential of additional education institutions in person's creation formation

The article examines the potential for further education institutions in forming the creative direction of the individual. During its history of further education institutions have accumulated extensive experience in the child's personality formation and development of creative potential. In the new socio-economic conditions of particular importance is the activity of institutions of supplementary education for children as a public social and educational institutions that implement social demands of practice and significantly expanded the traditional direction, shape, technology, work with children and adolescents. In the new socio-economic conditions of particular importance is the activity of institutions of supplementary education for children as a public social and educational institutions that implement social demands of practice and significantly expanded the traditional direction, shape, technology, work with children and adolescents.

Key words: further education, history of extracurricular and after-school education, after-school institutions, non-school function, the creative direction of the individual.

Palace of creative work of children and young people in Rostov-on-Don

August, 17, 2011
