

LAW
(specialty 12.00.01)

Avanesyan S.R. Ideal type of Russian power in the context of political identity dynamics in modern Russia

The article is devoted to the analysis of ideal-typical features of the “Russian power”. This concept is considered from the viewpoint of conceptological analysis as a category, describing all the range of universals of power relations in Russia. Development of the political system of modern Russia is considered as the implementation of the basic scenarios, inherent in the logic of the deployment of the “Russian power”. Special attention is paid to the “genetic predisposition” of Russian socio-political system to a dominance of power factors that determine all the other aspects of society.

Key words: power, legitimation, a concept, an ideal type, social memory, the Russian power

Southern

federal university

March, 2, 2012
