Ageeva N.A. Ethic aspect of the problem of doctor and patient's interaction

The article is based on the fact that in the course of historical development of medicine at the theoretical and practical levels has been linked to human values. Ethical issues in the doctor-patient relationship has always been inseparable from any form of medical practice. Modern medicine has a wide range of tools that can be used for good or ill is not only specific to the individual, but the human race as a whole, on the biological and social levels. The author believes that bioethics as a system of knowledge and certain skills, combined into a single profession, must have a common ontological, epistemological, humanistic, axiological orientation.

Keywords: professional culture, ethics, therapeutic cooperation, informed consent, the dominant "on its face" and "on the person of another" mode of "Genesis" and "possession", a legal and moral act, a categorical imperative.
