

LINGUISTICS
(specialty 10.02.19)

Grigorieva N.O. Communicative-and-pragmatic potential of constructions with polyfunctional words: text interpretation problems

The article is devoted to the problem of interpretation of the text with the communicative and pragmatic linguacultural research paradigms. The author reveals the trend towards integration of the main approaches to the analysis of the phenomenon of the interpretation of a literary text, identifies the presence of correlations between the type of linguacultural community, the dominant style in the community, including the communicative type of the source text, but also a way of interpreting and its result. Considering the film- and theatexts as special interpretation, the author states that if the structure of the source text, its main categories, types of dialogue, even models statements modify individual realities represent their tokens, the selection is carried out within the same thematic group. No less important is the selection of syntax for defining vector interpretation. It is considered that, as a token of subjective plans and subjective modality capable of performing a variety of text structures with multifunctional auxiliary words, including the syncretic text areas.

Key words: interpretation of the text, vector interpretation, the interpretation of the markers, structures with multifunctional auxiliary words.

Southern

federal university

December, 27, 2012
