

LINGUISTICS
(specialty 10.02.19)

Samygina L.V. Realization of cognitive potential of irony: metatext and intertextuality

The irony has the estimating nature and therefore it is capable of realizing its own cognitive capacities in the most complete and diverse way, in accordance with the process of intertextuality, fixed in the culture of XX-XXI centuries. The perception and interpretation of irony in a literary text, primarily chronologically attributable to the XX-XXI centuries, are possible only when the recipient knows the precedent texts that are referenced by a producer of literary discourse that determines the realization of the cognitive capacities of irony on the basis of metatext nature manifestation of intertextuality.

Key words: irony, metatext, intertext, intertextuality, literary text.

Southern

federal university

November, 23, 2012
