Dourov R.A. Activization of humans resources in Russia as a challenge of a stable development

Human resources management is essential for the economic growth of the country. Level of human capital determines the stage of development of the economy and its scientific, technical, labor and other capabilities. Accounting and mainstreaming of human capital is the main landmark of social and economic development of the state until 2030. Therefore, mechanisms and principles for the development of the capital become the object of intense scrutiny at all levels of the domestic economy. In Russian economy in recent years there is an active search for models of growth. Among the problems that require immediate resolution is the modernization of the national economy. In this regard, the article shows the role and place of human capital, the new requirements for it, the general trends and prospects of the development of human capital. In turn, the task of modernizing the national economy can quite clearly delineate the scope of the development of human capital, which is discussed in detail in the article.

Key words: modernization, development, management, human capital, economic growth.
