

PEDAGOGY
(specialty 13.00.01)

Morozova E.E., Timopheeva A.G., Larionov O.I., Isaeva O.A. Psycho-pedagogical aspects of improvement of ecological education activity of students and teachers

The article offers to update the importance of these areas of environmental education as training of professionals, able to organize environment practice and researching by the children, and create strategies for cooperation the subjects of environmental activities. The article describes the experience of organization the network of environmental projects in the region. The authors discussed the issues of improving environment education work by students of pedagogical profiles within the University project «Let's save the nature of native edge». The program for environmental extracurricular activity of primary school pupils in the framework of the Environment protection year of the Saratov region (2013) is analyzed. Considered are methodical and methodological aspects of the work. Intensification of socio-cultural engagement of the subjects of environment education space of the region by means of interactive teaching methods is substantiated.

Key words: environmental awareness, environmenal activity, environment education work, environment education projects.

Saratov state university of N.G. Chernyshevsky. Saratov, Russia

September, 14, 2013
