

SOCIAL STUDY

E.E. Sekirina

(Peoples' friendship university of Russia. Moscow, Russia)

Assessment of prospects of social and economic development of territorial public self-government

In modern Russia there is a process of development of system of local self-government, that is a result to the pervasive participation of the citizens in the solution of the local importance. It goes without saying, that local self-government represents the processing of the direct participation of citizens in management, a manifestation of their civil position. This article analyzes the territorial public self-government as a subject of local self-government. The author focuses on the development problem of territorial public self-government in Russia as a set of factors stimulating civil initiatives on the local level and expansion of their activities scales.

Key words: community, local government, social initiatives, local territory and community, civil society.

June, 23, 2014

---