Conceptualization of the notion “international communication” in social and philosophic knowledge

The task of social and philosophical conceptualization of the notion of "international communication", which is very active in recent years developed a system of social and humanities character, which generates a large interdisciplinary research space problems of international communication, it is extremely relevant to present-ac-Russian society. The unity of all the peoples of Russia and the planning of its cultural diversity is impossible without appropriate culture objective of international dialogue at the level which reflects the full range and characters of the interethnic communication that took place in the history of civilization. For the multi-national state, as Russia, the problem of forming a positive-term culture of interethnic communication in the system acts as priority measures.

Key words: international communication, nation, Russian society, nationalism, religion.
