

ECONOMICS

L.V. Kalacheva, D.Yu. Savon

(Central science and research institute of economics and science and technical information. Moscow, Russia; High school of business. Southern federal university. Rostov-on-Don, Russia)

Features of high-efficient job place at innovation activity in coal industry

The article explains the concept and content of high-efficient workplace (VPRM). It is proposed key performance indicators for the implementation of VPRM in the coal industry. The authors believe that the creation of high-performance jobs in the coal industry needs to analyze the situation with the growth of labor productivity and the average wage of workers and engineering and technical personnel. When creating a high-performance workplaces one should apply advanced techniques to facilitate creativity and improve the efficiency of coal production specialist activities.

Key words: high-performance workplace, labor potential, coal industry, indicators.

December, 17, 2014
