

ECONOMICS

D.M. Mashkov

(Moscow state university of food industry. Moscow, Russia)

Structure analysis of industry in Russian Federation

It is analyzed the long-term and modern trends in the development industry and its role in the gross domestic product of the country. Analyses the main economic indicators of industrial activity in Russia. It is presented and ranked in terms of production in the context of all industrial sectors according to their importance for the economy of the country. The work identified an attractive investment sector in the Russian economy. The peculiarity of the current stage of economic development of the Russian industry is the need for modernization of industrial production, reduction through effective management of the magnitude of risk associated with significant changes in economic relations at the macro, meso and micro levels. The dynamic change in the conditions of the national economy complicates the activity of industrial sectors.

Key words: industry, Genesis development, engineering, sustainable development, industry.

December, 14, 2014
