Law sources of social-assistant practices formation: experience of two regions comparison

It is considered the construction of social-assistant practices, which occur not only due to internal sources of self-development, but also with some support of the state, using state-legal mechanism of formation. The relevance of research on the social-assistant practice confirms the need to find new social bases of human existence in modern society. Number of regional regulations, affecting the subject of social-assistant practices vary depending on the region. The author reveals the differences in legislation between the two regions and is considering a legal mechanism for the formation of social-assistant practices.

Key words: socio-help practices, legal mechanism of formation, charity, normative legal act.
