

POLITICAL STUDY

V.L. Khamov

(Russian state social university. Kamensk-Shakhtinsk, Russia)

Mentality as category of modern political discourse

Considering the specific reaction of Russian society modernization impulses in the political sphere, it is necessary to address the underlying reasons of political processes, including, of course, is the phenomenon of mentality, unambiguous interpretation which would satisfy the theoretical framework of the representatives of different sciences. Speaking about the peculiarities of the political mentality must come from their formation is influenced by two main factors: the specificity of culture of Russia and specificity of formation and functioning of power in the Russian state.

Key words: political mentality, stereotypes of modern politics, the personification of political institutions, the formation and functioning of government, the specifics of the Russian culture.

November, 30, 2014
