

SOCIAL STUDY

Ivanchenko O.S.

(South-Russian state polytechnical university (NPI) of M.I. Platov, Novocherkassk, Russia)

Innovation activity of young scientists as a strategic resource of its professional socialization

The main characteristics of science and innovation activities of young scientists in modern Russian realities are considered. It is analyzed innovative activities as metaactivity (activities as a way to ensure that the nature of other activities), aimed at transforming the whole complex personality of the entity, providing not only adapt to the rapidly changing social and professional reality, but also the possibility of influencing it. It is revealed the main problems of successful scientific socialization of young scientists, suggests possible solutions.

Key words: young people in science, innovation, innovative potential, innovative activity.

January, 10, 2015
