

PEDAGOGY

R.R. Sadekov, O.Yu. Senatorova

(All-Russian institute of retraining of MIA staff of Russian Federation, Domodedovo, Russia)

Contemporary prospects for the application of distance learning technologies in the sphere of additional professional education

It is considered the modern problems and prospects of application of distance learning technologies in the sphere of additional professional education. It is updated the most acute issues associated with the use of remote technologies, implementing them in the educational environment, using telecommunications and information technology. It is noted the importance of this fact and the system of additional professional education becomes one of the most important tools in the task of improving the skills of a large number of specialists of different levels.

Key words: distance learning technologies, educational environment, distance education, vocational education, educational services, software and hardware, telecommunication environment, teaching experience, motivation, cognition, perspective.

June, 14, 2016
