

PEDAGOGY

V.N. Vlasova, N.Y. Tairova

(Rostov state medical university. Rostov-on-Don, Russia)

Organization of science and research work of students at medical university

It is considered the questions of the organization of research work of students at the medical university. The article contains information about the conditions of development of creative skills of the future experts, an important factor of which is attracting students to scientific research. It has been studied variety of forms and methods of research work of students of medical university. The basic structural unit of the organization of research work of students at the department is a student scientific community. Conducting subject contests and competitions is aimed at improving the quality of prep-reparation of future specialists.

Key words: scientific and research work of students, active forms of education, method, method of research, applied research, scientific work of students, implementation of research results.

July, 30, 2016
