

PHILOSOPHY

Yu. Shestakov (Don state technical university. Rostov-on-Don, Russia)

Historical consciousness as a factor of strategic resistance to threats of Russian national security

It is explicated the role of historical consciousness as a factor of strategic counter to the fundamental threats to Russia's national security. Such threats include: elimination of value matrix of civilization, external aggression, and various forms of separatism, political instability. It is concluded that, only forming historical consciousness in the framework of a national Russian ideology, it is possible to accumulate historical experience, based on axiological transhistorically civilizational constants, and thereby ensure the best for our civilization combating existential threats.

Key words: historical consciousness, historical experiences, strategic threat, civilization, nation-state community.

September, 21, 2016
