Economic globalization and its impact on the economic security of modern Russia

The article deals with threats to the economic security of national states, caused by the destructive consequences of economic globalization. It is noted that globalization, eroding national economic borders, complicates the problems of ensuring the sovereignty of countries over their resources, creates new forms of dependence of national economies on world commodity and financial markets.

Key words: economic globalization, economic sovereignty, economic security, transnational corporations, national state, innovative economy, competitiveness of the economy.
