

PHILOLOGY

Anna V. Kaneeva

(Don state technical university. Rostov-on-Don, Russian Federation)

On the question of the influence of various languages on the formation of Russian military terminology (on examples of English and French)

It is considered the degree of influence of the terminological systems of a language on the Russian language in different historical periods and on specific areas of activity. The impact of French and English on Russian military terminology is compared on the basis of the semantic classification of borrowed terms. It explicits the difference in the process of borrowing.

Key words: terminological system, borrowing, classification, military terminology, Russian, French, English.

January 29, 2019
