Multiculturality and interculturality, language and culture in the XXI century

The problems of intercultural competence are considered, which allow a person to respect other people, effectively and properly interact and collaborate with people in situations where cultural “otherness” and differences are significant. It analyzes issues that allow individuals to act as “intermediaries” among people of different cultural affiliations, interpret and explain different points of view without giving up their own identifications. Interculturalism contributes to the prosperity of cultural diversity, as it allows people to appreciate and respect the different cultural perspectives of others without sacrificing their own. It is necessary to improve interculturalism that respects existing cultural ties and does not pose a threat to humanity.

Key words: intercultural competence, multiculturalism, interculturalism, culture, language.
