Areal vocabulary in multi-system languages

The main layer of the vocabulary material of any language throughout its development is the original words. They make up the overwhelming majority of words that are currently used in any language, and form the main part of its wealth, which determines the originality of the national speech, its deeply national identity. Thus, this is not only the most important part of words in modern vocabulary in quantitative terms, but also words that determine the specifics of our vocabulary, especially its system and ways of development and enrichment.

Key words: layer of vocabulary material, original words, national identity.
