

PHILOSOPHY

Larisa Kh. Gazgireeva, Lyudmila A. Burnyasheva, Svetlana A. Marchenko

(Russian State University of Tourism and Service. Moscow, Russian Federation. Pyatigorsk State University. Pyatigorsk, Russian Federation)

Existential-value grounds of human existence in conditions of modern «slipping» reality

It is justified the relevance of philosophical thoughts on the subject of the problem of man, his humanity and dishonesty, that is, the presence of spirituality or spirituality in him. In the aspect of the existential-value foundations of the existence of a modern personality, it is emphasized the idea that a person can be called a person only when his internal experiences are oriented towards universal human values and they are measured by humanity. It is concluded that the concepts of «man» and «people» cannot be identified, but it is necessary to attach deep importance to the essence of man from the point of view of his spiritual and moral existence, in particular in the conditions of modern «slipping» reality.

Key words: problem of the person, existentialism, existential crisis, spirituality, inspirituality, spiritual and moral life, the «escaping» reality.

October 25, 2020
