

PHILOSOPHY

Ekaterina I. Shapovalova

(North Caucasus Institute (branch) of the Moscow Humanities and Economic University. Mineralnye Vody, Russian Federation)

Development of scientific and humanitarian discourse in the context of development trends of globalization

It is described an urgent problem today, directly related to the development of modern society, which consists in the formation of a humanitarian discourse in the science of the XXI century. Thus, it becomes obvious that globalization is a catalyst of communication processes in a rapidly changing society. The author reveals the peculiarities of the processes of formation of the Humanities in the modern world. In the Humanities today there is a question about the prospects of development of globalization processes. In the modern era, according to the author, due to the acceleration of the pace of technological progress, based on the formation of global information networks expands the space of the dialogue of peoples and cultures. This allows making a conclusion about increase of the role and importance of the Humanities in modern society. The Humanities are designed to study and predict the course of the general development trends of society and man. The social sciences and Humanities determine to find ways out of humanity from the crisis of civilization. The results of a study presented in the paper are based on the principles of historicism, the methods of system and structural-functional analysis has gained recognition and widespread in the study of social and cultural processes. The author believes that the development of the Humanities and, under its influence the major trends in the development of education, is the key to further successful development of science and society.

Key words: socio-cultural sphere, globalization, humanitarian knowledge, humanitarian discourse, culture, civilization.

October 19, 2020

---