

PEDAGOGY

Olga N. Vasichkina, Svetlana V. Samarskaya

(Rostov State Economic University. Rostov-on-Don, Russian Federation)

Realization of volunteer work concept in upbringing process of Rostov region youth

It is considered the concept of volunteer work as the basis of youth upbringing. The authors analyze different kinds of volunteer organizations according to the type of activity, participation of state, support of different layers of population. State support is important and has coordinating force in realization of volunteer movement programs. Considering the importance of social, educational, ecological volunteer work, the authors emphasize the necessity of involving the greater number of youth into different kinds of volunteer activities. According to the authors, students are the most receptive to the problems of the surrounding world which is the result of social communication and life experience.

Key words: youth, volunteer work, patriotism promotion, social work, ecology, student organizations.

November 20, 2020
