

PEDAGOGY

Ulyana V. Novikova, Olga A. Gordienko, Violetta E. Zinkovskaya

(Kuban State Technological University. Krasnodar, Russian Federation)

Formation of intercultural competence for students-foreigners from CIS countries, studying in the south of Russia

The purpose of the study is to consider the specifics of the formation of intercultural competence among foreign students from the CIS countries who study in the south of Russia. It is made an attempt to systematize educational texts thematically, which will actively contribute to strengthening the interest of foreign students in the history, culture, and literature of Russia on the basis of cross-cultural interaction with the culture, history and literature of their native country. The scientific novelty of the research lies in the creation of a system of educational texts that reveal the regional specifics of the south of Russia in terms of intercultural relations with the Republic of Kazakhstan. As a result, it has been proved that the formation of intercultural competence can be especially effective when studying texts that vividly reflect the cross-cultural interaction of countries and regions.

Key words: Russian as a foreign language, intercultural competence, cross-cultural communication, text, science, literature, culture.

December 11, 2020
