State policy for the prevention of non-natural threats

It is considered the directions of the state policy of prevention of technogenic threats. It is concluded that an effective trend in the socio-economic development of the Russian Federation and prevention policy is the active interaction of state bodies and trade unions as the most interested in carrying out these positive social processes. It is noted that the transition to a 6-hour working day and, accordingly, a 30-hour working week can quite reasonably act as a factor of social and professional development of people, as well as a circumstance of improving the health and well-being of the working population.

Key words: reduction of working hours, public policy, threats of man-made nature, leisure, continuing professional education, professional association of employees.
