Determination and explanatory ideas possibilities (part 1)

The current stage of world development is faced with the need to clarify general categories, since today particular manifestations are often taken for the essence of any social phenomena. Today, the idea is not only a fundamental object of research in ontology and epistemology, but also acquires a completely "material" character, becoming a key factor in the implementation of social transformations. The article is devoted to identifying the determinative and explanatory possibilities of ideas in the realities of modern society. In the first part of the proposed research, the author analyzes the approaches prevailing in philosophy and proposes his own definition of the idea. The division of reality depending on the levels of objectivity is considered. The ideological foundations for the formation of social objects are given.

Key words: idea, praxeology, society, reality, social transformations, epistemological concept.
