Moral standards of pedagogical ethics

It is stated that the teacher's observance of the norms of pedagogical ethics not only during the explanation and consolidation of new material, but also during the survey is an essential condition for the normalization of the relations with students. The skill of the teacher is to help the student to learn the laws and foundations of the subject matter without the cost of moral education. According to the authors, the moral act is often identified with the notion of the action. However, action is only a link in the complex mechanism of moral action. A moral act can only be called an act that is subject to moral evaluation, an act in which a person's attitude towards someone or something is concluded.

Key words: education, upbringing, personality, motive, tradition, assessment of the act, moral orientation.
