Philosophy of the existential-humanistic worldview against postav: battle for the idea of the university

Diagnostics of the development of society and the forecast of its development is carried out by the philosophy of science and the philosophy of education, the sociology of science and the sociology of education. At the same time, the social engineering of political and economic discourse does not mean what is actually happening in the university space. This «frame» overshadows the need to develop self-awareness of the uniqueness of being as the basis of thinking. Today, thinking is no longer replaced by knowledge, but by information. Information has already supplanted knowledge today, so philosophy should displace information and knowledge by self-actualization of thinking in the space of the ethno-cultural emptiness of the university. The university ceases to recreate imaginary communities, because information does not educate, but forces mass to adapt to mass. To prevent this from happening, an existential-humanistic philosophical discourse is simply necessary in the university space.

Key words: being, education, university, postav, existential-humanistic worldview, philosophy, science.
