

PHILOSOPHY

Natalya A. Olshannikova

(Novosibirsk state university of Economics and Management, Novosibirsk, Russian Federation)

Revival of spiritual and moral education in Russian universities

In the situation of searching for a new model for the development of a modern Russian university, one can see that not only in Russia, but in many countries of the world, especially in the West, there is a spiritual and moral decline, which is characterized by the cultivation of the philosophy of consumption, the destruction of the institution of the family, the loss of basic concepts of good and evil, patriotism, which has the most negative effect on the development of spiritual and moral education. As a result of multiple reforms in the field of higher education, value models of personality formation have been lost. New models of education offered the expansion of cultural boundaries through the introduction of alternative cultures, which in itself has nothing negative if the balance of the two main trends – conservative and innovative – is not disturbed.

Key words: spiritual and moral education, spirituality, patriotism, the idea of national revival, university, higher education.

November 8, 2022
