Typologization of modernization as a socio-philosophical problem

The article analyzes the typologization of modernization in the socio-philosophical thought of the second half of the twentieth – early twenty-first centuries. There are four varieties of such typologizations. The first is based on the degree of progressiveness of modernization. The second is based on the genesis of modernization. The third involves differentiation by varieties of cultures that adapt modernization achievements. The fourth, “polymodernization”, created on the basis of widely understood contextualism and proceeding from the fundamental heterogeneity of modernization. It is concluded that the first three variants of the typologization of modernization are adequate to the industrial stage of human development. The “polymodernization” variant of typologization is most relevant to post-industrial trends, as well as the globalization accompanying them, and meets the interests of global and national security to the greatest extent.

Key words: modernization, typologization, globalization, criterion, type, culture, civilization.
