

PHILOSOPHY

Olga A. Orlenko

(Don State Technical University, Rostov-on-Don, Russian Federation)

Difference between the concepts of “death” and “assumption” in Russian religious thought of the XIX–XX century

The ideas of the differences between the assumption and death as types of human death in the works of Russian religious thinkers of the first half of the XX century are investigated. Russian theologians and works of Russian religious philosophers dealing with the topics of the assumption and death are analyzed, common and distinct ideas about the differences between the assumption and death are highlighted, and indications of different groups of sources are revealed in the texts of Russian philosophers, the appeal to which should contribute to the formation of a correct understanding of one of the most important biblical an event celebrated by Christians all over the world – the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Keywords: God, Assumption of the Virgin, saint, man, death, universal resurrection, fear, joy.

October 7, 2023
