Implementation of the concept of patriotic education of youth through the study of museum collections (on the example of the Military Historical Museum-reserve “Prokhorov field”)

The article presents the implementation of the concept of patriotic education through familiarization of the younger generation with the museum collections of the state Military Historical Museum-reserve "Prokhorov Field". It is shown that patriotic education contributes to the formation of such personality qualities as a sense of pride in the Great victories of their ancestors, devotion to their Homeland. The topic of understanding the importance of studying memorial values and unique repositories of the cultural heritage of the Russian history of the Great Patriotic War period, demonstrating the glorification of the heroic Victory of the Russian army on the Arc of Fire, which proved to the whole world invincibility and courage, the ability to crush a treacherous enemy at the cost of their lives, is raised. As conclusions, the article argues for the need to study museum expositions that contribute to the effective spiritual and moral education of a patriot and a citizen of his country.

Key words: patriotism, spiritual and moral education, cultural heritage, historical memory, the Great Patriotic War, the Battle of Kursk.
