Conflicts in the contest of the theory of justice

The regularity of the influence of social conflicts on the process of establishing fair social relations is substantiated. In the conditions of modern realities, there is not only the dynamics of increasing conflicts, but also the fact that they inevitably penetrate into various spheres of life. The practice of researching social interests and needs in the theory of justice shows that the model of a just society is conditioned by the degree and level of conflict regulation.

Keywords: conflict, justice, interests, differentiation, egalitarianism, social theory, and inequality, equality of opportunity social structure, social stratification, social differentiation.
