

PHILOSOPHY

Natalia V. Berezhnaya¹, Tatyana V. Lugutsenko², Olga M. Shevchenko³

^{1, 2}Lugansk State Pedagogical University, Lugansk, Russian Federation; ³Southern Federal University, Rostov-on-Don, Russian Federation

Patriotism as the basis of the spiritual security of Russian society

The article analyzes the potential of patriotism in ensuring the spiritual security of Russian society. Patriotism is a multidimensional socio-cultural phenomenon, the meaning of which is determined by the cultural and civilizational development of society and its political traditions. In Russian society, the relationship between man and the state has historically been ambivalent, giving rise to fundamentally different manifestations of patriotism. The patriotic traditions of society, oriented towards the civic position of the individual, have always been the spiritual basis of Russia's national security.

Key words: patriotism, citizenship, spiritual security, national security, national idea, liberal ideology, model of Russian statehood.

April 15, 2024