

PHILOSOPHY

Narine L. Wiegel¹, Emiliano Mettini², Lilia T. Zaseeva³

(¹Rostov State Medical University, Rostov on Don, Russian Federation; ²Pirogov Russian National Research Medical University, Moscow, Russian Federation; ³Gorsky State Agrarian University, Vladikavkaz, Russian Federation)

Revival and influence of Slavophile ideas in contemporary Russian state policy

The article examines the revival and influence of the ideas of Slavophilism in modern Russian state policy. The authors analyze how historical concepts that originated in the 19th century are adapted and integrated into modern political strategies and discussions. Examples of the use of Slavophile ideas in the formation of national identity and strengthening patriotism are considered. The influence of Slavophilism on the process of returning to traditional spiritual and social values, as well as on the formation of new vectors of cooperation with countries close in historical and cultural codes, is highlighted. The conclusion is made about the importance of critical perception and constructive application of Slavophile ideas for the successful promotion of national interests in the context of globalization.

Key words: Slavophilism, contemporary Russia, state policy, cultural identity, national traditions, geopolitics, Russian ideology, historical heritage, patriotism, public opinion.

October 25, 2024
