The University temple in the educational work system of a modern university

The research works aimed at studying educational units, houses and free-standing temples as part of the infrastructure of modern universities are considered. The practical part of the article describes the experience of the Church of the Apostle John the Theologian under the Elm Tree, which is a church complex on the basis of which the student center "New Square" of the Russian Orthodox University of St. John the Theologian is located. Thanks to the creation of the student center, the temple in question became a unique example of the synergy of a religious organization and a non-governmental university, and was also included in the educational work system of the university.

Key words: university, temple, education, upbringing, worldview, students, educational work, student center.
