

PHILOLOGY

Maxim V. Ivchenko

(Southern Federal University, Rostov-on-Don, Russian Federation)

Features of legal vocabulary translation in English-language military discourse.

The article considers the specifics of the functioning and translation of legal vocabulary in the English-language military discourse. The analysis of the most frequent legal lexical units and ways of their translation in English-language military texts is given. It is shown that an adequate translation of legal vocabulary, which is found in English-language military texts, depends on knowledge not only of the language, terms and military structure, but also of the cultural characteristics of the countries that use the translation language. It is emphasized that this knowledge is necessary specifically for military translation, since this type of translation is one of the most difficult in the modern world.

Keywords: legal vocabulary, military discourse, translation features.

March 10, 2025

---