The ethno image in the English-language internet discourse

The dominant features of the ethnicities of Germans, French and Israelis are revealed, which are formed in the comments of Internet users in the English-language Internet discourse and contribute to the preservation of existing and the creation of new ethnostereotypes. The most significant are the organization, punctuality, sanity, diligence and benevolence of the Germans, the tendency to protest, the cruelty and ill-will of the French, the cruelty and ill-mannered Israelis, their propensity to racism and apartheid.

Key words: imagology, Internet discourse, ethnostereotype, ethnoimage, ethnofeature.
